

Jodi Lewis

Jodi Lewis is currently a Senior Managing Attorney at Family Violence Appellate Project. She has over 13 years experience advocating for survivors of DV, SA, dating violence, and stalking as a litigator, trainer, supervisor, advocate, and author. She has spent years engaging in holistic-client centered representation of survivors, mentoring and supervising attorneys in the field, and collaborating with community partners, state-wide organizations, and legal aid providers. Jodi has presented at numerous conferences and training on a range of topics effecting survivors, provided written testimony to judicial committees on custody matters, and written protocol for law enforcement. During the pandemic, Jodi published several articles on domestic violence, including “The Stability Paradox: The Two-Parent Paradigm and the Perpetuation of Violence Against Women in Termination of Parental Rights and Custody Cases.”
